Speakers

James Wood

James is an experienced litigator whose legal career in Hong Kong spans more than two decades. His association with Denis Chang's Chambers goes back to 1993, when he served as a summer pupil in the chambers.

James was most recently a Solicitor Advocate and Partner at an international law firm before transferring to the Hong Kong Bar. He has practised as a financial services and disputes lawyer with Freshfields, Goldman Sachs and O'Melveny & Myers, where he acted on some of the best-known cases arising out of the global financial crisis.

Isabel Tam

Isabel Tam was called in 2013 and has a broad civil practice. She was awarded the Bar Scholarship in 2012.

Her practice has an emphasis on public law, family law, commercial law, regulatory matters, and land law and building management.

Isabel graduated with a first class LLB and with distinction in her LLM. She has an MA in competition law. She is also a US-qualified attorney.

Tara Liao

Tara was called to the bar in 2015 and is developing a broad civil practice in commercial injunctions, company and insolvency, competition, trust, arbitration, defamation, land, insurance and cross-border disputes.

Before joining the bar, Tara was a solicitor at Kennedys specialising in commercial litigation and regulatory matters. In addition to her Hong Kong qualifications, she has a bachelor degree in PRC Laws from Peking University and passed the PRC bar examination before completing her common law education and training.
